

Climate Change in British Columbia

British Columbia has two provincial and five regional health authorities. The First Nations Health Authority and the Provincial Health Services Authority serve the entire province, while the regional health authorities serve specific geographic areas. Each regional health authority is expected to experience the effects of climate change differently. Figure 1. shows the boundaries of the five regional health authorities and the expected impact of climate change in each region.

* Fig.1 Regional Health Authorities In BC